REPORTING PRACTICE SUMMARY - 2022

Mexico's reporting changed slightly in 2022.

Mexico reported only Numbers of small arms exports, as opposed to 2021 when it reported Actual Numbers.

Mexico reported Numbers of SALW imports, as opposed to 2021 when it reported Actual Numbers. It did not report any import of major conventional weapons.

GOOD PRACTICES

Mexico provided clear, disaggregated information on its reported exports and imports.

Mexico provided descriptions as well as some comments describing the nature of each reported export and import.

Mexico clarified descriptions of the reported imports under the light weapons 'others' category.

ROOM FOR IMPROVEMENT

Mexico excluded some data for 'commercial sensitivity/national security-related' reasons but did not specify where or how much information was withheld.

Mexico did not provide information on final exporting states for its reported imports of SALW.

Mexico did not specify whether it reported authorized or actual exports or imports.

Mexico could indicate clearly that there were no reported exports or imports in specific weapons categories and sub-categories rather than leaving relevant sections of the reporting template blank.

TRANSFER SUMMARY - 2022: EXPORT DATA

- Mexico reported exports to two countries in 2022. Of these, one was a State Party and the other a Signatory.
- Mexico did not report exports of major conventional weapons in its 2022 annual report.
- Mexico reported the export of 13,502 SALW items, covering four sub-categories. Of these, the majority were rifles and carbines (74.1 per cent) and sub-machine guns (25.9 per cent).
- The states importing small arms from Mexico were the United States (74.1 per cent) and Guatemala (25.9 per cent).

TRANSFER SUMMARY - 2022: IMPORT DATA

- Mexico did not report imports of major conventional weapons in its 2022 annual report.
- Mexico reported the import of 21,200 SALW items covering six sub-categories. Of these, the majority were revolvers and self-loading pistols (82.5 per cent), 'others' (light weapons) (12.9 per cent) and assault rifles (3.5 per cent).
