

ATT MONITOR ARMS TRANSFERS DASHBOARD TERMS AND CONDITIONS

THE ATT MONITOR PROJECT

The ATT Monitor, an independent project of Control Arms, was launched in January 2015 with the support of the governments of Australia, Austria, Ireland, the Netherlands, Norway and Trinidad and Tobago.

The project is now the de facto international monitoring mechanism for the Arms Trade Treaty (ATT) and serves as a source of information on the implementation of, and compliance with, the ATT. Its authoritative and quantitative research and analysis serve to strengthen Treaty implementation efforts and improve the transparency of the conventional arms trade.

The ATT Monitor produces research for its key audiences: government, policymakers and export officials, civil society and international organizations, as well as the media and the general public.

ABOUT THE DASHBOARD AND ITS USE

The use of the ATT Monitor Arms Transfers Dashboard is subject to the following terms and conditions. The Dashboard, developed by Control Arms, is a civil society-based global resource providing independent analysis and information on arms transfers under the Arms Trade Treaty (ATT). Users agree to adhere to the Fair Use Policy, which allows for non-commercial use, reproduction, and sharing of data with proper attribution to the ATT Monitor and Control Arms. Commercial use of the data is not permitted without prior authorization.

For further information, visit <https://attmonitor.org/> or contact: sol@controlarms.org.

TERMS AND CONDITIONS

The ATT Monitor, a project of Control Arms, maintains a fair-use policy regarding its copyrighted material as presented through the ATT Monitor Arms Transfers Dashboard. Fair use is defined as:

The extraction or viewing of ATT Monitor's copyrighted material for purposes such as criticism, comment, news reporting, teaching, scholarship, or research, provided that the use is non-commercial; and accessing less than a specified percentage of a published dataset.

Note: Both conditions must apply for the use to qualify as fair use.

Fair use, as defined above, is freely authorized as long as due reference is given to the data source: the ATT Monitor Arms Transfers Dashboard provided by The ATT Monitor.

Commercial use of ATT Monitor's copyrighted material is not covered by this policy and generally requires authorization, which may include the payment of a reasonable royalty. Commercial use includes incorporating ATT Monitor data into ratings, research, or statistical content or services provided for a fee. Please refer to the Commercial Use section below for further details.
